Dive Surface Safety Attendant Position Summer 2017

Want to get out on the water this summer? Build your resume?

The Surf and Turf Research lab at the University of Victoria is looking for volunteer dive surface safety attendants to assist with SCUBA diving field work from May through September 2017.

A surface safety attendant is needed for both single day dives at Ogden point or Henderson Point (Saanich inlet) based out of Victoria and multi-day trips on Galiano Island (camping and boating). Galiano trips would last at most 5 or 6 days at a time.

Required Qualifications:*

Current First Aid and CPR

Oxygen Administration Certification

and Dive accident management training

*possibility to provide some of this training free to volunteers

Desired Qualifications:

CAUS (scientific diving) certifications

SVOP (boating) certifications

Current University of Victoria diving status

Applicants are not required to be available for the whole summer, even a few weeks commitment will be helpful. At this time, this is volunteer (unpaid) work. Should funding become available there is the possibility of some compensation, however this is not guaranteed.

If interested please email your resume, list of certifications, and availability to Stefania at sgorgopa@uvic.ca
